IN RE: HYUNDAI AND KIA GDI ENGINE
MARKETING, SALES PRACTICES, AND PRODUCTS LIABILITY LITIGATION

MDL No. 2898

ORDER DENYING TRANSFER

Before the Panel:* Plaintiffs in the Northern District of California Musgrave action move under 28 U.S.C. § 1407 to centralize pretrial proceedings in the actions listed on Schedule A in the Central District of California. This litigation consists of ten putative class actions, seven of which are pending in the Central District of California. The other three actions are pending in the Northern District of California, the Middle District of Florida, and the Western District of Washington. In addition, the parties have informed the Panel of two related actions pending in the Central and Northern Districts of California. All responding parties—plaintiffs in five consolidated actions in the Central District of California, plaintiffs in the Western District of Washington Short action, and defendants—oppose centralization.¹ The Short plaintiffs alternatively support the Central District of California as the transferee district, but request the Panel instruct the transferee court to place Short on a separate track for discovery and pretrial motion practice.

On the basis of the papers filed and the hearing held, we conclude that centralization will not serve the convenience of the parties and witnesses or further the just and efficient conduct of this litigation. These actions share some factual issues arising from allegations that manufacturing or design defects in certain Hyundai and Kia vehicles equipped with gas direct injection (GDI) engines may cause those engines to seize, fail, and potentially catch fire. The eight related actions pending in the Central District of California, though, have all been assigned to the same judge, and five have been consolidated. Only four actions are pending outside the Central District of California, two of which involve notably different factual allegations regarding the alleged defects.² Where only a minimal number of actions are involved, the proponent of centralization bears a heavier burden to demonstrate that centralization is appropriate. See In re Transocean Ltd. Sec. Litig. (No. II), 753 F. Supp. 2d 1373, 1374 (J.P.M.L. 2010). Movants have not met that burden here.

* Judges Sarah S. Vance and R. David Proctor took no part in the decision of this matter. Additionally, one or more Panel members who could be members of the putative classes in this litigation have renounced their participation in these classes and have participated in this decision.

In addition, the parties in the consolidated actions pending in the Central District of California have informed the Panel that they have reached a settlement-in-principle that will resolve the claims as to vehicles equipped with the Theta II engine, which constitute the majority of vehicles and models at issue in the actions. The parties anticipate moving for preliminary approval of the proposed class settlement shortly. Movants argue that centralization is necessary to protect the interests of the class members with respect to the proposed settlement. Movants, though, may file objections in the Central District of California if and when the parties there move for court approval of the proposed class settlement. See In re Wells Fargo Fraudulent Account Opening Litig., 282 F. Supp. 3d 1360, 1361 (J.P.M.L. 2017) (denying centralization, in part, because the parties would have the opportunity to object to the adequacy of the proposed settlement).³ Centralization at this time is premature and could delay the class-wide settlement with little or no benefit to the parties or putative class members. See In re Patriot Nat'l, Inc., Sec. Litig., 349 F. Supp. 3d 1379, 1380 (J.P.M.L. 2018) (declining to centralize actions where a settlement-in-principle had been reached).

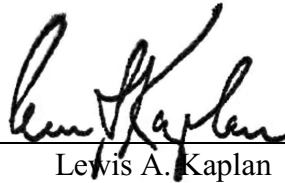

² Plaintiffs in most of the actions allege that a manufacturing defect in defendants' Theta II 2.0 liter and 2.4 liter GDI engines restricts oil flow through the connecting rod bearings to other parts of the engine, which eventually results in an engine stall and failure. Plaintiffs in the Northern District of California Musgrave action allege that defendants failed to ensure the use of new parts every time a component of a GDI engine is removed (as occurred when the engines were repaired following earlier recalls), and that this re-use of certain parts makes the engines susceptible to a sudden fuel leak, which can result in fire. Plaintiffs in the Western District of Washington Short action allege that two recalls announced in February 2019 pertaining to the Kia Soul and the Hyundai Tucson involve the overheating of the catalytic converter, which can result in oil leaking onto hot engine parts, and improperly sealed oil pans.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the motion for centralization of these actions is denied.
